

OneOffice[™]
know everything

strategix[™]

Strategix is a leading European software house, dedicated to the development and rapid deployment of supply chain software.

We focus on the wholesale and retail distribution, logistics and service sectors where our software maximises supply chain efficiency and accelerates customer service.

Our systems are designed for reliability, availability and performance. Our customers enjoy a rapid return on their investment and genuine competitive advantage.

OneOffice is a new generation of supply chain software combining operations, finance, customer and event management in one innovative system.

This seamless approach maintains a 360° real-time view of your organisation providing information as important events occur. Human intervention is automatically sought at critical junctures or if conditions unexpectedly change. This enables you to respond quickly and make informed decisions.

OneOffice – be at one with your business and know everything.

OneOffice has a component based design, enabling you to choose a solution which is right for your business embracing sales, marketing, finance, logistics, order processing, inventory, warehouse management, procurement, partners, vendors, production, service, e-commerce and electronic collaboration.

"The great thing about Strategix software is that its a modular, scalable solution that is highly flexible and can be up and running in a sensible time frame. Strategix management are customer and service focused like ourselves. It was a meeting of minds."

Darren Billings, IT Director

Azlan Group – Network and communications solutions distributor

"Progress against our original plan has shown us just how well Strategix software fits our business; two years after going live we've actually reached the level we expected to be at in year five!"

Tracey Putt, Commercial Director
